This black and red embellished mini-quilt is 12" square and is foundation paper pieced. I had never tried something this small or with prairie points or embellishments. Kinda fun!

This is another mini-quilt which is 8 1/2 x 11". It uses a "broken color" process by Denise Miller. It is batiks appliqué onto turquoise polyester silky leaving some of this "foundation" exposed. It is echo quilted.

McCornack House (now the Didjeridoo Dreamtime Inn) - on Main Street - the only house in Mendocino with a gambrel roof.

Spencer Hills House - on Little Lake Street, next door to the Joshua Grindle House. The apple tree (which must be well over 100 years old) is thread painted to try to capture the white blossoms that literally hide the house from view.

Henry Jarvis House (also known as the Maxwell-Jarvis House) - one on the "Banker's Row" houses on Little Lake Street.

Mendo Map — We'll put markers on the map to indicate where each of the buildings is.

I have to share a photo of our new fur babies — Mozzarella on the left and Gnocchi on the right.

UFO Table runner — also used a placement of the quilting around the Bees and Sunflowers. All done with my Embroidery hoop.

For Dress A Girl.
So much fun to sew these!

Two more UFO's for me, one from the first mystery quilt I tried, the second was going to be a baby quilt for someone's first grandchild.

Lap quilt for Bert's daughter who loves green.

Donation quilt 60x72"

Most of the fabric donated by Daisy. Pattern from book Grace gave me. Currently in Sharon's 'to be quilted' stash.

While helping sort the massive fabric donation the guild received, I thought 'hmm I think I can make these work together' until I had half of the 80 blocks on the design wall. Yikes! Lots of futzing — I chalk it up to a learning experience. Just because the colors go together in my head doesn't necessarily make it so.
